It Squints From Here

National politics will take a breathing spell this week while the eyes of the nation are focused on the campus of the recently renamed and refinanced Pryzybyzy on the Oconee. Admittedly here is an experiment in progressive education that will have the support of the entire educational world. The experiment is broad in scope, deep in purpose and breathtaking in its implications. The faculty of the new school is to be composed entirely of traveling professors. Feeling that the need of a broader vision is so vitally necessary to the maintenance of the calibre of work given by the professors of Pryzybyzy the faculty has arranged to be away on trips to conventions, meetings, lectures, concerts, and vacations for restful travel for a total of all except one week. It is felt that by this method rather than that of close attention to classroom work as at present that something of the world can be brought into the drab classroom during the lecture period.

In the absence of the professors the classes will meet as usual, but will adjourn to the movies on Wednesday afternoon for bank night and also on every other evening of the week. A special show including Mr. Taylor (long absent son of Dean Taylor, by the way) will be scheduled for Wednesday evenings the student body will flock to the auditorium to hear illustrated lectures on the art of biscuit making, and on Tuesdays the entire day will be given over to recitations by successive students on "Why I liked the concert last night."

Thursday evenings will be recreation evening, and all students must PLAY, or suffer instant dismissal. Since the professors will all be away during all except one week of the school year, in their absences the classes will be conducted by electrical transcription, controlled by a master machine in the registrar's office. At appropriate intervals the machine will ask, "Any discussion, please?" and after the usual period of silence the machine will continue the lecture.

It is thought that this will prove a great boon to many professors who will thus be able to continue giving the same lectures over and over without undue strain on the vocal chords.

Nor is the movement for "edu-

Program Given On Monthly Broadcast

The regular monthly broadcast put on by G. S. C. W. will be given Wednesday afternoon, from Station WSB, Atlanta, Georgia. This month's broadcast will feature G. S. C. W.'s Own Hit Parade with Our Nell as mistress of ceremonies. The G. S. C. W. Rosebuds will play and L. T. Vaughn will render the vocals.

The seven hit tunes of the chapel year will be played over the air, with Our Nell giving the ranking of each song. In order to determine which songs rank highest, an accurate tabulation has been made of the number of times they have been sung in chapel. The one which has been sung the most times will be Number One on Your Hit Parade, and so on.

The program is as follows:

Number One—It Isn't Any Trouble Just to S-M-I-L-E.

Number Two—Sweetly Sings The Donkey.

Number Three—All You-Etta.

Number Four—Solomon Levi and the Spanish Cavalier. These songs will be sung simultaneously, with the Rosebuds giving Solomon Levi and Our Nell and L. T. Vaughn singing The Spanish Cavalier.

Number Five—Oh, Mr. Wing.

Number Six—The More We Get Together.

Number Seven—All I Want Is Sociability.

Gells Spends Day At Home

Dr. Huy Werbert Gells, president of Pryzybyzy on the Oconee, spent a day on the campus last week much to the amazement of the student body.

It seems that Dr. Gells suddenly realizing that the day had come when he had no Rotarian luncheon to attend, and no commencement address to deliver, that the session of the state legislature had adjourned, and that there were no high schools to visit, being then confronted with the problem of what to do with his day decided to spend it on the campus.

Sauntering to chapel Dr. Gells was conscious of the curious looks cast in his direction. Being possessed with the sudden thought that perhaps something was amiss in his accoutrements he edged up to the mirror in Pryzybyzy Hall, formerly Parks Hall, and was somewhat reassured to see that he was not speaking "see-

Unbound Volumes Of Catalogs Given

Mr. S. S. Sears, co-president of Sears-Roebuck Company, has become the most recent Friend of the Library, having presented to the Ina Dillard Russell Library a new shipment of Sears-Roebuck catalogs. In addition to the new catalogs he has given unbound copies of all the old Sears Roebuck catalogs up to date.

Mr. Sears is widely known in educational circles as philanthropist and generous benefactor, having given of his great fortune to make schools and colleges better places in which to while away one's time.

G. S. C. W. was first brought into the limelight of Mr. Sears' mind when the authorities of the school purchased from his firm a collapsible swimming pool. He personally superintended the expressing of the swimming pool to the campus and the installation. Since his visit he has been intensely interested in all the activities on the campus. Mr. Sears contemplated many gifts to the college among which was a new fire house, fully equipped with two new engines and all the accessories. However, he felt that more students could be reached through his gift of the magazines.

Miss Satterpasture, head librarian, is quoted as saying: "Such a worthy gift must be given special commendation by the library staff. We have determined, after careful consideration, to give a separate file to the magazines, the name of this to be the Sears-Roebuck Memorial. We feel that these magazines will be of great value to the students as source books and for reference work. To demonstrate the usefulness of the donation, a display will be placed on the library bulletin board in the near future, showing the occasions one might have for using a Sears-Roebuck catalog and offering suggestions to the students for best employment of the magazines. In order to make these magazines always available, we wish to announce that they cannot be checked out. We expect such a rush of students to use these that it will be necessary to sign up for different hours for use of these magazines. A sheet will be placed on the bulletin board in the entrance to the library for students to sign their names and the hours during which they wish to make use of the magazines."

The old copies of the catalogs are particularly valuable, since they are the only ones now in existence.

Ennisites Demand Just Desserts

The members of the senior class enter today upon their fifth day of the sit-down strike launched as a formal protest against the omission of dessert from the mid-day meal on Tuesday, February 15. The seniors are standing the grind well with sympathizers keeping them well supplied with hot dogs and dopes from the local drug stores.

The strikers under the leadership of their class president, are holding out for ice cream at every meal, with L. S. Bursar steadfastly refusing to sign on the dotted line and clinging to his first statement that "money does not grow on trees."

The crisis developed on Tuesday when despite the fact that spoons had been included in setting the table, no dessert was forthcoming. Arthenice Mallory justified the seniors' stand in demanding their just desserts saying, "If we had had an unusually good dinner, we would not have rebelled. But—our menu included spare ribs—very spare ribs too, mashed potatoes with the lumps completely unmashed, and three other vegetables none of which could be distinguished from the other two in appearance, manner of preparing or taste. However, noticing that there were spoons at each place, we were cheered—but when no dessert appeared we rebelled."

"Yes," broke in Juliette Squeedle, the president of the class, "And we are going to rebel until L. S. Bursar signs on the dotted line for three-colored ice cream twice a day."

O'Gee Signs Up Sally Rand

Disney O'Gee, chairman of the faculty entertainment committee, has done it again—again he has succeeded in bringing to the campus an artiste unequalled in her field. This attraction will bring to a close the entertainment numbers scheduled for this quarter.

Great dissatisfaction has been rather generally expressed on the campus at Dr. O'Gee's inability to come to an agreement with the prominent dance team of Hiedman and Wumphries, who are considered as outstanding in the development of the modern dance. It seems that due to the already scheduled practice for the campus production of "Little Men" on Friday night, the twenty-first, and since the picture show on Saturday night starring Clark Gable, no date was open for the dance team to present their recital.

However, the recently added

Jesters Play

"Little Men"

As a fitting followup to their stupendous, super-colossal fall quarter production of "Little Women," the Jesters have decided to produce "Little Men," that equally stirring, equally heart-tugging sequel to "Little Women."

According to custom, the faculty members will take the male roles in the play. As tryouts for the play on Tuesday night, judges were hard put to it to determine those best qualifying for the part. Competition was keen, and an undercurrent of tenseness and strife pervaded the atmosphere.

The following characters were chosen: Nax Moah will take the part of Professor Bear, having been given the part on strength of suitability of the name of the character; Dr. Tommy Fields will take the part of John Brooke, and Dr. Paulus Bo'sun is to have the role of Laurie. W. C. Caper, playboy of the campus, Disney O'Gee, Herbert Messey, Huy Werbert Gells, Dean Haykor, Larry Hittle, Lord Fencedin, Silliam Walley will be the little men of the play, with Truthful D' Andre taking the part of the baby.

The feminine characters will be the same as those in the play "Little Women." Arthenice Lamory is to have the role of Jo, Scotchie McTavish, that of Meg, Freddie Rika will play Amy, and Moyce Jickle will play Beth. Plans are being made for Beth to be exhumed, since she

Plug Tobacco Widow Tracks Down Only Smokeless School

Word has just been received in the office of the president confirming the $50,000,000 endowment of G. S. C. W. by Mrs. Elvira Pryzybyzy, rich widow of Claudius Junius Pryzybyzy. Elaborate preparations are being made for the reception of the donor on the afternoon of April first at which time amid pomp and ceremony The Georgia State College for Women will be officially rechristened Pryzybyzy on the Oconee.

When interviewed as to her sudden decision in regard to endowing the college, Mrs. Pryzybyzy went on record for saying, "I read in the Chitlin Switch Gazette that G. S. C. W. was the only college left in the world that did not let the students smoke. I immediately realized that here was a school worthy of the fortune my poor dear Claudius Junius amassed in the plug tobacco business before the invention of those coffin nails drove him from the closed doors of his plug tobacco factory to an early grave."

To further justify her decision Mrs. Pryzybyzy disguised as a salesman visited the campus one day last spring and endeavored to pass out samples of a well-known brand of cigarettes to the students as they went from class to class. All her offers were repulsed with variations of the theme, "We don't smoke here." Pleased to the utmost with this reaction from the student body, Mrs. Pryzybyzy communicated with the president and announced her intention of leaving to the college her entire fortune of $50,000,000.

In celebration of the occasion during Mrs. Pryzybyzy's stay on the campus students will hold a huge demonstration denouncing the deleterious habit of smoking—this to be climaxed with a giant bonfire.

If on your toes we chanced to step
It's not to try to smirch your rep.

Before you start us on the run
Recall—it's only good, clean fun.

We members of the paper staff
Know we give you many a laugh.

First is Little Aubry sweet
Cursed with complex oh so neat!

She sits her down in mood laborious
To pound us out an editorial.

First she labels it "We Progress,"
Then from the point she doth digress.

We wonder could you ever guess
Why Lucy writes the column "Dress?"

Doing it increases chances
Of bids to all the college dances.

Mary Kethley gathers the news
Her rosy cheeks help chase the blues

Betty Donaldson, a maiden joy
Writes of sports with greatest joy

But Thank Heavens—it's finally done!

Letter to The Editor

Dearest Editor: There are a number of us which think we ought to be allowed to chew chewing-gum in chapel. The reasons for said chewing are as follows:

It increases our poise. Emoly Post, or somebody to that effect, says that poise is woman's greatest asset, and as we set, we ought to have poise.

It helps us to resemble cows. Now this ain't meant to be funny. Cows has pretty eyes, especially when they are chewing their cuds.

We are less likely to go to sleep while the faculties are making their upliftin' speeches.

It keeps our mouths open half the time, and the speakers will think we are smiling at what they say. The other half the time, that when our mouths are closed, they will think we are thinkin' hard.

It is more economical. Instead of parking our gum on the door, or throwing it away when we go to chapel, we could just keep the same old piece right up till dinner.

It is more sanitary. Chewing gum parked outside, or even under the seats, gets dirty little germs on it.

It avoids mistakes. Sometimes when we go back to get our parked chewing-gum, we find somebody else has got it and left us theirs instead.

Therefore, to improve our looks, our poise, our chances of keeping awake, and to save money and to guard our health, we ask you, please tell Dr. Wells to let us chew gum during chapel.

Yours hopefully,

WRIGLEY BEECHNUT.

Pryzybyz Forever

Our toes have been stepped upon—we demand women's rights! According to a recent editorial in the Atlanta Journal an anonymous correspondent have suggested that Georgia should have either red-and-black or gold-and-white license tags, these colors being of the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech respectively and therefore having real significance. We reiterate—our toes have been stepped upon—what's the objection to having brown and gold license plates? Those colors have significance too.

The correspondent writes, "So far as I know the colors which Georgia seems to have adopted permanently have no relation to anything connected with the state. Also, the scheme of alternating the colors of the background and the figures cause the tags for every other year to be identical." Then he goes on to offer his University of Georgia—Tech color scheme, which is fine as far as it goes but it doesn't go far enough.

We suggest that the state favor one of its institutions of education yearly—running the gamut of Pryzybyz on the Oconee, G. S. W. C. S. G. T. C. and so on down the alphabet.

Alabama uses at least every third year crimson, and white—the colors of its state university; North Carolina uses rather often the blue and white of the institution at Chapel Hill.

The Journal editorial suggests that the colors which Georgia has been using for the past three years are an approximation of the gold and blue of one of the state's most famous schools—Emory University, which is observing this year its centenary.

ON THE BOOK SHELF

We depart from our usual policy of reviewing the latest book in the rental library (that being our policy because there-by we get to read the books without the rent) to leaf through the current issue of "Ballyhoo".

Now being published in the popular pocket size, although like Mr. Capel, we, too, have never found a pocket into which one of the darn things would fit and in the case of Ballyhoo a pocket in which to hide the bally thing is acutely necessary only to keep it from one's roommates however.

Especially noteworthy is page six which depicts one of the noblest examples of the art of "doodling" that has come to the attention of this reviewer, who is a past master doodler. "Doodling" the national pastime made popular by the eminent Mr. Deeds on that memorable occasion when he "went to town" realizes its highest form in the rare mural discovered in the phone booth of a Cigar Store on Sixth Avenue, in New York City. A photograph of the mural reveals to some extent its scope and subtlety . . . don't fail to notice it.

The general theme of this issue of "Ballyhoo" is the current fad of condensing—the rather recently highly developed process by which you start off with Anthony Adverse and however many thousands and pages that come includes and end up with what could be carved on the head of a pin in between the spaces left after the Lord's Prayer has been carved thereon. The edition opens with a pictorial demonstration of the new Digesto machine (wonderful for college students, they say) which digests any book down to a few sentences . . . all you have to do is drop the letters into a plate of soup and read as you eat. The demonstration pictured in the ad shows

Who lived 'way down in Tara, She never failed to get her man. Her name was Scarlett O'Hara. But to return to "Ballyhoo" which is what we're reviewing after all. Among the articles we find listed, "Learn to Be a Condenser," while listed with the stories we find "Success Story" the tale of what happened to Delia, who learned to be a condenser. We also liked "The Tiniest Tale Ever Told" condensed from Twice Told Tales, Anthony Arverse, and the N. Y. Telephone Book, then recommended from the Condensers' Miniature Monthly. Says the author, "This is indeed the Tiniest Tale ever told. In fact it's so little that no one, except myself, ever heard or saw it, and sometimes even I doubt my own eyes. (I also cross my T's)." Not to be missed is the "Porphyritic Portfolio of Photographic Art" done in the manner of "Coronet."

This issue of "Ballyhoo" is unusual . . . by the editors' own admission—in that it contains no "who was that lady I seen you with" jokes, no Big Names, No Book Review, No Hemingway Story, no $10,000 contest and no crossword puzzle.

Dress Parade

With the proposed trip to Europe getting well underway, the students of Pryzybyz on the Oconee are greatly concerned about what the well-dressed young Pryzybyz maidens should wear on a jaunt to Europe. With the help of Miss Emily Postandintel, teacher of Home Economics, and author of the famous book on etiquette "Knifing and Forking with Pryzybyz on the Oconee assies" your writer will endeavor to give some advice as to what clothing to take to Europe. In her book, Miss Postandintel devoted one entire chapter to the etiquette of dress.

Miss Postandintel's basic idea of dress is practicality and economy. Of dress is travel we would suggest some roug material like bur-lap or croquerases (the newest lap material from Paris). Slacks are permissible and socks required. Flat heeled shoes will complete the ensemble.

While on board boat one will need some form of play costume. We suggest for this occasion that the Pryzybyz girls take their charming gym suits. The green broadcloth and similar cut of the costumes will let the general public know that we are from dear old Pryzybyz. To further carry out the idea we suggest that the ones making the trip get some form of badge to let people know who they are.

Evening dresses may be of any cut or material; desired, but we understand that it is quite the thing nowadays on shipboard and abroad for well brought up young maidens to indulge in chewing gum at evening affairs, and since we wish to carry out all the customs of dear old Pryzybyz on the Oconee as much as possible, we advise all of the girls to take along as much chewing gum as possible.

For accessories during the day and evening, there is one outstanding vogue among the Pryzybyz girls that we consider worthy of being carried to Europe. We think it will be quite representative of the Alma Mater and quite desirable for the delegates from the school to wear metal hair-clamps and bobby pins at all possible times.

Still further carrying out the customs of our school we suggest that white shoes in January will be quite appropriate. Of course, it will be summer time when we go, but the idea is the same.

For hiking and mountain climbing we suggest the usual skirts and lumberjackets with the addition of high heels. This makes for quite a home touch. If the mood is upon you, you might add socks to this.

Color combinations this year are quite unusual and we commend the taste that the dear Pryzybyz girls have shown. Particularly have we noted, and particularly do we recommend combinations of red and orange, pink and yellow, black and brown. Just in the event that some unforeseen event may come up—for instance, a skiing trip into Switzerland—we suggest that you take along Miss Postandintel's book for future reference. Not only will you have hot tips on clothes for every occasion, but also helpful hints on what to do and when to do it. It tells what every Pryzybyz girl should know.

hardy girls will be allowed to challenge each other to Deck tennis, but a medical examination will be a prerequisite. Miss Pryzybyz emphasized the fact that she was an exponent of the athletic type for women. She herself has run in the relay a distance of forty feet in five minutes, she asserted. At the inter-vention of her mother Mrs. Pryzybyz, Huy Werbert Gells, president of Pryzybyz on the Oconee, and Hoy Suitmaker, Dean of Pryzybyz, announced that no classes would meet during Challenge Week, and that everybody would be expected to attend the most instructive session in the croquet games in which Miss Nalce Apier, who was a few years ago, the balls of the croquet field, and Dr. Potter Lioneden, who has taken his master's in "The Beauty to be Derived from Croquet," will play. It might be mentioned that, in the meantime, bolls have been done away in croquet with since the modernized rules have gone into effect.

Keyhole Kitty

All my life I've had an inner longing, a burning ambition, a hidden desire, to write a column filled with satire, bubbling with wit, and sparkling with entertainment . . . the Gods have been good to me, fate has been kind . . . my fingers tremble as I touch the keys . . . my breath is caught in excitement . . . and so . . .

Genius, heretofore undiscovered, has suddenly burst into full bloom . . . L. S. M., the chief ripper-upper and teared-downer of our campus, has equaled Ogden Nash and surpassed Dorothy Parker, by springing upon his class without any before-hand preparation the following brilliant lines: "Five little girls all in a row, All of them answer, 'I don't know'."

One of the sophisticated sophs, playfully called by her friends "Skeety-weety" attributes the victory of her fifth-graders in a spelling match to the fact that several members of the class adjourned to the seduction of the closet and held prayer meeting . . . I'd like to know why it is that a certain table of freshmen refuse to sit down to a meal without carefully wiping out each chair . . . The seniors are wondering if their best friends would tell them, or if they missed getting the right kind of literature on their twelfth birthdays.

From the looks of the shortage of men at the informal dance last Saturday night they had better change the tune of their class song from the merry melody of "Easter Parade" to the woe-begone wail of "This Can't Go On!" . . . And that reminds me, speaking of seniors, A. D. had a man Saturday night and she kept him secluded in one of the back parlors . . . cheap skate . . . And then they tell me there is a certain faculty member who continuously refuses to buy tickets to any of the dramatic entertainments on the campus, especially if one special member of the senior class has anything to do with the production . . . What Junior is it that has to be bribed, begged, and implored before she will permit her date to have a no break with anyone except herself . . . and at that, it has only happened once, why then, I wonder . . . What senior is it that goes to town every afternoon and returns with a dazzling smile if she attains what she went after . . . on second thought, what was it she went after when freshman in the past week has been elected to an office, been scheduled for a debate, made publicity manager of an important event, asked to lead morning watch, and for the first time in her life finds herself so busy that she forgets to do perfectly obvious things . . . Then there is the Sophomore who has two local men on her string, each unaware of the other's existence . . . and speaking of Sophomores, one fair blonde not only refuses anyone a no-break with her date, but will not let him dance over a half dozen steps with the same young lady . . . her initials are M. K., if you're interested . . . I've got a tip for you, if you want to make a hit with a tall, dark, exotic senior, call her "Ruthie" she loves it . . .

Yo Gods! I've just read the above . . . it's sadly lacking in satire, I see no traces of wit, and I'm afraid no one would ever call it entertainment . . . oh, well, Freud says if you ever get a suppressed desire out of your system, you're cured . . . after all, I guess that's the way Joan Butler feels about coaching basket ball teams.

SPORTS

At the request of Mrs. Pryzybyz, the name of the Athletic Association on the campus, formerly called the Recreation Association, has been changed. According to sources close to Mrs. Pryzybyz, she has been concerned for quite some time at the inadequacy of the name Rec Association at the institution she was indowing. At a conference called last week, she told Dilly Wean Andrews and Clara Stuckey that it was shameful that an organization serving the campus so widely should be fettered with so commonplace a name. Mrs. Pryzybyz said that she was sure she could speak for the parents of the flower of southern womanhood when she declared "What parent would want their daughter to be instructed in the art of ping pong by someone representing a Rec Association. 'Brrmp," she exclaimed, "it sounds more like the name of an automobile wrecker service than an association of dignified young women whose aim is to do for ping pong and skating what Walton did for fishing." As the result of her heartfelt concern, the organization was renamed, in accordance with her wishes, in honor of Mrs. Pryzybyz's daughter Saphronia who was an outstanding member of the Chitlin Switch High School relay race team. The new name of the organization, as announced by Miss Dilly Wean Andrews today, will be The Saphronia Society for the Physical Development of Typical Pryzybyz on the Oconee Maidens. Miss Saphronia Pryzybyz agreed to be present at the meeting last night at the request of Clara Stuckey who feared that the more reactionary members of the board would propose a more conservative plan of action not in line with the expressed wishes of the Mrs. Pryzybyz. Miss Pryzybyz was announced by Miss Stuckey, and instantly captured the Association by remarking on the buxom beauty and evident durability of the girls representing the college's athletic Association. Immediately after Mrs. Pryzybyz's speech, the vote was taken and proved to be unanimously in favor of naming the Association the S. S. P. D. T. P. O. O. M. When the returns were announced, Miss Saphronia made a delightful impromptu speech expressing her appreciation of the honor done her, saying that although totally unexpected, it was not unwelcome. She then asked that the schedule for the next week be read to her. Robbie Chaimstorer, president of the S. S. P. D. T. P. O. O. M., read the schedule and the association was changed some phases of it at Miss Pryzybyz's dictation. She was most enthusiastic about the forthcoming Challenge Week, in which all Pryzybyz maidens will be challenged all other Pryzybyz maidens to games of ping pong, croquet, or checkers. Shanty Crimmonrichard will be in charge of the First Aid equipment to be put in use after the checker games. Miss Pryzybyz was loth to permit such strenuous exercise, but reconciled herself when told that adequate medical attention would be provided for the participants. A few of the more

Pryzybyz

The entire student body will pass in review before the bon-fire, each girl casting into the flames a package of cigarettes (these will be furnished by a leading manufacturing concern of cigarettes). The day will be closed as the students sign the new Alma Mater, "Pryzybyz, Forever."

During the christening ceremonies the present buildings on the campus will be renamed in honor of members of the Pryzybyz family. The official naming of the college as "Pryzybyz on the Oconee" will take place on the front campus. From there the party of notables will tour the campus rechristening each building in turn. The former Parks Hall, inasmuch as it is the administration building, will be named in honor of the benefactor of the college, Elvira Hall; Arts will be redesignated as Claudius Junius Hall; Chappell will be known as Esmeralda Hall, in honor of Mrs. Pryzybyz's second cousin twice removed. Other buildings and dormitories will be named in accordance with Mrs. Pryzybyz's wishes.

To replace the old G. S. C. W. sign over the main walk a new neon light is being made especially the gold scheme of brown and gold will be retained as Mrs. Pryzybyz has as yet expressed no preference for any certain color. The new sign will bear the name of the institution "Pryzybyz on the Oconee" and in addition the lights will flash on and off depicting the main building of the institution outlined in gold with the Oconee flowing by—the Oconee will be done in brown and by a special process the light will simulate flowing water.

Students of the college are generally elated over the stroke of good luck which has befallen their Alma Mater. They are particularly pleased over their new name as the designation of their college as "Pryzybyz on the Oconee" settles forever the G. S. C. W.-G. S. W. C. feud.

Through The Week With The Y

Following the success of the three-day Institute of Human Relations sponsored by the Young Woman's Christian Association this quarter, the executive committee has announced that a similar institute will be conducted next year, the general theme of it to be the Institute of Inhuman Relations, dealing with the questions of what to do with pestiferous relatives.

Miss Etta Kett Post, nationally recognized authority on modes and manners will lead a round table discussion on how to entertain the undesirable house-guest, or how to keep the poor relation from your door.

Senator I. M. Lobbyist has accepted a speaking invitation and has tentatively announced as his subject, "The Closed Door at Home."

Such vital questions as how to sure second cousins twice removed of the habit of hailing one in the street with all the familiarity of a step-sister; how to prevent dear maiden Aunt Esmeralda from making a match for you with the horrid little boy next door; and other problems akin to the subject will be discussed.

An unprecedented attendance at Vespers on last Sunday night was recorded due to the combined program offered by the deputations of Emory University, the Y. M. C. A. deputation of the University of Georgia, Mercer, Presbyterian College, Georgia Tech, Auburn, and V. M. I.

The Industrial Relations Committee will meet in the Biology lecture room on Thursday night to study the industrial implications of the sit-down strike at home with special reference to the senior strike now going on.

Men-Women Relations committee will meet on Thursday to consider the idea of sponsoring a date bureau on the campus, especially on dance week-ends so as to secure blind dates for all the members of the various class who either because of inability or disinclination are without escorts. Senior class; take note!

Sulky Seniors

Meanwhile the keeper of the keys, L. S. Bursar, remains firm in his original stand insisting that since the college entertained the Amalgamated Association of Fountain Pen Fillers at a luncheon on the Saturday of the week previous that it was necessary that dessert be omitted from the menu on every third Tuesday for a period of six months in order to make up the deficit.

"The budget must be balanced," maintains Mr. Bursar. "So must our menus!" insist the members of the senior class, who are determined to sit it out until they receive their just deserts.

dition the lights will flash on and off depicting the main building of the institution outlined in gold with the Oconee flowing by—the Oconee will be done in brown and by a special process the light will simulate flowing water.

Students of the college are generally elated over the stroke of good luck which has befallen their Alma Mater. They are particularly pleased over their new name as the designation of their college as "Pryzybyz on the Oconee" settles forever the G. S. C. W.-G. S. W. C. feud.

With Ouhav Alumnae

With the announcement of the endowment of G. S. C. W. by Mrs. Claudius Junius Pryzybyz and the subsequent rechristening of the institution as Pryzybyz on the Oconee has come a storm of protest from the ten thousand alumnae of the college from the four corners of the state where they are now engaged in pedagogical endeavors. We present one minute interviews with prominent alumnae concerning their reaction to the renaming of their Alma Mater.

Miss Arthenice Bagpipe who is grief stricken is confined to her room and refuses to see anyone but her faithful canine, "Snapsie." "Too think that our poor dear college has come to this . . . to be endowed by that poor dear stupid Mrs. Pryzybyz. And all of her money came from that simply horrid tobacco man."

Miss Merrily Anderfils, past president of the alumnae association, is quoted as saying, "To think that ouhav ch'urn should have the priceless heritage of ouhav G. S. C. W. snatched from their very grasp by a plug of tobacco."

Miss Lweeze, sister of the famous cough drop manufacturers, says, "Pryzybyz, Forever, humph! I shall go to my grave singing the same rousing song that inspired me in my college days. 'Root tee toot toot, Root tee toot toot'."

We are the girls of the Institute."

Whereas: We, the members of the alumnae association of the GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN (down with Pryzybyz on the Oconee) feel it our duty to uphold the traditions and the name of ouval college;

Whereas: We as students have sat at the feet of those great men to whose hands the destiny of ouhav college was intrusted in former years—great men to whom the name of GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN was a title befitting the institution which is graced;

Therefore, Be it Resolved: that the members of the alumnae association of the GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN will have no part in the defamation of the fair name of ouhav college. In fact, if we may say so, phooey on Pryzybyz on the Oconee!

Pryzybyz Forever

From closer observation we agree heartily—the present color scheme used is barely an approximation of Emory's blue and gold. If that pumpkin yellow is gold, we rejoice in being off the gold standard. Anyhow, we just don't like the license color scheme.

Did you know that there are no rooms number 13 on this campus? After investigation it was found that all of the dormitories, the hospital, and even classroom buildings skip from room number 12 to room number 14. Why?

cation through contacts" to end with the faculty. The student body too, will travel, will learn by contacts, will profit by travel, will forget the dry and musty grind of their books for the real problems of living, for the vital concerns of life. The A. Capella choir will go to California, the Vesper choir to New York, the cadet teachers will teach in Florida, the geology class will study at Stone Mountain, the journalism class will take up headquarters at the Dempsey hotel in Macon, and since the astronomy class is tired of looking at the big dipper it will move to South America and watch for the Southern Cross.

Social life in this startling new educational institution will not be neglected, nor will the cultural aspects of life. The debaters will meet very two weeks to discuss the question: "Resolved: That we should have a go-home week-end every other week-end," and the student body will hold meetings twice a week to resolve something or other, usually, "Why can't we do this . . . ?" The judges' decision in both cases will be given by electrical transcription, the judges meeting before they leave for their various duties abroad.

Especially attention will be given to student expression in the new organization. The yearbook will be "better than last year's" twice a year instead of only once. The literary magazine will experiment with the totally revolutionary idea in college literary magazines of using stories with plots, and the publicity department of the college will try something brand new in getting out a feature story on the ideal college boy.

The newspaper will blossom forth to new glory. Each week an editorial will be entitled "We Progress" and special attention will be given to laudatory comments on Pryzybyz's non-political election device. Since so many of the students and faculty will be away attending conferences of one kind and another, a column of advice on the best methods of covering conferences will be conducted by the associate editor, including allusions to absentee reporting. The sports column will be entirely different. Instead of a column of comment on sports there will be instead poems of inspiration, anecdotes on rheumatism, exhortations to PLAY and general sound advice on how the editor goes about her athletic career. Another innovation in college journalism will be the use of alliterative headlines on all stories such as Jittery Jessies Jitter on Jitney (pertaining to the home-

This Time Last Year

We learned that the campus of G. S. C. W. was to be further enlarged by the addition of a new dormitory. The funds for the building were to come from the P. W. A. loan.

The poised, talented artist, Wilbur Evans, captured the hearts of the audience with his remarkable voice and engaging personality. Mr. Evans was brought here by Concert Association.

A survey was made of student's and faculty's pet hates in the money spending line. Stamps, toothpaste, and soap led the list of general grievances for the students, while the faculty members were more or less bothered over the wherewithal to purchase said articles.

Those talented students of G. S. C. W. and G. M. C. who were so lucky as to "make" the A. Capella Choir were making plans for the state-wide tour. Big things were expected of the Choir on its tour.

Some one brilliant individual made the rounds of the dormitories making an investigation of signs adorning the rooms. Such specimens as "Time For Pabst," "Please Pay When Served," "4 Miles to Tampa," "We Have It," and "We Live for Love" caused many mental gymnastics concerning the why, wherefore, and how of such signs.

ward return of a group from anywhere). Together with sparkling comments on suite mates' dresses this will complete the paper excepting a movie review. The review by the way will not concern itself with such sordid things as whether the picture is good or bad, oh, no, that would be too near what the old timer review is supposed to do. Instead it will concern itself with a search for superlatives, it being the opinion of the reviewer that there must be a better world than colossal.

The entire grading system will be abolished for the purpose of the new school is to teach people to think, not teach them anything to think with, and after all, we're teaching how to solve problems not subjects.

This last principle fits in with the innovation of not having professors on the campus as it has been the observed experience of many, many observers that college students think best when faced with practical problems such as how I can get a date with my roommate's boy friend, and which dress shall I wear, and does my hair look better bobbed or in a permanent and whether I shall go to the movies this afternoon or have a chocolate sundae instead, than when in the classroom when according to the same observers, no thinking goes on at all. So, after the transcribed lecture is over a motion picture screen will descend in each classroom and slides will be thrown on the screen of these various problems and the students will just sit and think, and practice thinking, and think and think.

Educators think the new college will produce a rare race of super-women.

Rival Guides Seek Tourists

General warning to all students: If you are the possessor of any sum in the near vicinity of $671, venture in the direction of Miss Tattie Turner or Mr. L. S. Bursar at your own risk!

Rival European tours have been organized by these two intrepid travelers with practical threats of shanghaiing serving to swell the ranks of those enrolled in the parties.

Following the printed notice issued by Mr. L. S. Bursar telling of the attractions of his tour—all nicely printed on slick paper in royal blue type, Miss Tattie brought out an illustrated folder, lace-edged, outlining the best points of her trip.

Mr. L. S. Bursar's major attraction in addition to the sight-seeing is monogrammed visas; while Miss Tattie is offering members of her party passport photos done by Assano, the Japanese photographer, at no additional cost.

The Bursar party will go to Cologne; the Turner Party to Bologna; the former to Heidelberg the latter to Nuremberg. The party under the personal direction of Mr. L. S. Fowler will visit a total of fifteen ducal palaces, nineteen art galleries, twenty-three cathedrals, seven ruins, fourteen excavations, and twelve universities; whereas the Turner Personally conducted tour will view twelve universities, fourteen excavations, seven ruins, twenty-three cathedrals, nineteen art galleries, and fifteen ducal palaces!

Take your choice—personally, we're going to Niagara Falls.

O'Gee Signs

(Continued from page 1) number will completely recompense the audience. Dr. O'Gee has secured for one performance only that outstanding exponent of the modern dance, Sally Rand. She will appear here on the night of February twenty-ninth. She is scheduled to do both her bubble and fan dances, the numbers which made her the toast of the World Fair. Although this is a college lyceum number, the general public will be admitted. A capacity audience is expected.

Dr. O'Gee declined to comment on the probable success of the entertainment but stated that from the publicity material he had received that he understood Miss Rand gave a most artistic performance, one which will undoubtedly equal the standard of the other numbers in the lyceum course.

D. Eder Deeds Court House

"Girls it gives me great pleasure to present to your college government, the deed for this grand old courthouse. It has served Baldwin Co. many years and I sincerely hope that it will serve you as many." And with these words, spoken by Mr. D. Eder, county ordinary, the Baldwin county courthouse became the property of Pryzybyz on the Oconee yesterday at three o'clock. The school was given a holiday in honor of the occasion, and everyone turned out. The students crowded around the platform, which was built before the courthouse, and were very hard to handle. The police had to be doubled in their efforts to keep order. At the end of the exercises the crowd could no longer be restrained, and Mr. D. Eder and his party had to flee to the inside of the courthouse for protection.

The county officials had in mind the idea of the gift for a long time, but they kept their plans to themselves until a week ago. In remodeling the courthouse they kept in mind the architecture of the campus. Mr. D. Elder said, "It has always been my ambition to see the college girls enjoy the courthouse and now I know they will."

Council had a special meeting at the first of this week to make definite plans as to how they would use the building. It did not take them long to agree on keeping it for their own use. The courtroom will continue being used as a courtroom—for council. The offices will be turned into private rooms for the girls on "pro" for such major offenses as: walking beyond the flag-pole after dark, staying down town more than the allotted hour, speaking during study-hall, and talking to boys over the hedge. The latter will call for private confinement with telephones in the rooms.

Each room will have a radio, a very comfortable lounging chair, and plenty of movie magazines. Students on "pro" will not be allowed to attend classes.

The courtroom will have a large floor space for dancing during court sessions, and the college will furnish cocktails and sandwiches during the council's conferences on judgment.

Dr. Gells Spends

rivalled his friend, Durtis Clxon. Arriving in chapel Dr. Gells selected a seat well to the front of the stage and sat down to contemplate the sea of beautiful faces before him. In the meantime in the sea were rising some waves of curiosity as to whether the gentleman who had just arrived was the speaker for the day. This opinion gaining rather general credence, knitting proceeded as usual.

Other faculty members straggled in to chapel. They too, gazed with no sings of recognition at Dr. Gells. The bell rang, chapel began. Following the rendition of a rousing round, Dean Haylor, who was conducting the exercises looked with some hesitation at the still unrecognized Dr. Gells. To cover his confusion the latter raised his handkerchief to his proboscis. Dean Haylor gazed with faintly dawning recognition. Again Dr. Gells took refuge in his handkerchief.

"Why, it's Dr. Gells!" breathed the Dean in amazement. "I'd recognize that technique anywhere."

Dr. Gells rose to announce that due to a very full schedule of lectures, addresses, and traveling in the interests of Pryzybyz on the Oconee he would be unable to meet with the student body for the duration of the scholastic year.

Jesters Play

was such a huge success in "Little Women," the Jesters feel that they can afford to undergo a little incongruity. Beth will die in Little Men. It is hoped that the scene will have as much power as the one in the previous play. Mrs. Nax Moah will direct the play, and she hereby gives notice that the date of the play will not be changed for any petty little concert they may wish to have. Moah contends that this play is more important to the students than any little old concert, and THIS time she intends to be stubborn about it.

The play is expected to be a box-office hit and reign supreme over the other productions that the Jesters have done. The Jesters will find it hard to live up to their major production of last year, "Camille," starring Eppie Mattilore as Camille and W. C. Capen, G. S. C. W.'s own Robert Taylor, as Armand. However, the student body is wholeheartedly back of the dramatic urge on the campus and they will back "Little Men" to the last ditch.
